Narrative Code

Learn Against the Machine November 24, 2018

```
reading in data files, joining to access prescribing behavior (response vars)
set.seed(3)
library(caret)
library(class)
library(dplyr)
library(glmnet)
library(MASS)
library(pROC)
library(pscl)
library(ROCR)
library(tidyverse)
County_Drug <- read_csv("County_Drug.csv")</pre> prescribing_behavior <- read_csv("293 COUNTY DATA/prescribing_behavior.csv") %>% mutate(county_id = paste0("05000US", FIPS)) %>% subset(select = -c(`State Name`, `State Abbreviation`, `County Name`, `FIPS`)) colnames(prescribing_behavior) <- c(</pre>
  "part_d_prescribers",
  "part_d_opioid_prescribers",
  "opioid claims",
  "extended_release_opioid_claims",
  "overall claims",
  "opioid_prescribing_rate",
  "extended release prescription rate",
  "change_in_rate",
  "county id"
joining data sets
working_data <- County_Drug %>% inner_join(prescribing_behavior, by = "county_id") %>% na.omit() %>% subset(select = -c(X1))
creating over vs. under median rate variable working_data$over_avg_rx_rate <- 0</pre> working_data$over_avg_rx_rate[working_data$opioid_prescribing_rate > median(working_data$opioid_prescribing_rate)] <- 1</pre> ## setting up testing & training datasets working_data$id <- 1:nrow(working_data)</pre> train <- working_data %>% dplyr::sample_frac(.75) test <- dplyr::anti_join(working_data, train, by = "id")</pre> ## logistic regression: intuitive vars glm_fit <- glm(</pre> over_avg_rx_rate ~ unemployment_rate +
 hs_graduation_rate +
```

```
average_age + population +
    male_proportion +
    num_exchange +
    poverty rate,
  data = working_data,
  family = "binomial"
summary(glm_fit)
logistic regression: intuitive vars, race/ethnicity vars, and state legislature var glm_party_fit <- glm(</pre> over_avg_rx_rate ~
  unemployment_rate +
    hs_graduation_rate +
    average_age +
    white_proportion + black_proportion + american_indian_proportion + asian_proportion + hawaiian_pacific_proportion + interracial_proportion + hispanic_proportion +
    state_legislature,
  data = working_data,
  family = "binomial"
summary(glm_party_fit)
logisticreg regression: vars significant in last model glm_sig_fit <- glm(</pre>
  over_avg_rx_rate ~ unemployment_rate +
    hs_graduation_rate +
    average_age +
    poverty_rate +
    unemployment_rate +
    state_legislature,
 data = train,
 family = "binomial"
summary(glm_sig_fit)
testing prediction accuracy of all three models in turn ## (fill in model name for different calculations) glm_probs <- data.frame(probs = predict(glm_sig_fit, newdata = test, type = "response"))</pre> glm_pred <- glm_probs %>%
 mutate(pred = ifelse(probs > 0.5, 1, 0)) glm_pred <- cbind(test, glm_pred)</pre> glm_pred %>%
  count(pred, over_avg_rx_rate) %>% spread(over_avg_rx_rate, n, fill = 0)
```

```
glm_pred %>%
  summarise(
    score = mean(pred == over_avg_rx_rate), recip = mean(pred != over avg rx rate)
 )
creating data set without county-specific vars (i.e. county name, state, etc.)
Note: Could be interesting to test state as a variable minus_vector <- c(1, 5, 6, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 33) full_mod_set <- working_data[, -minus_vector]</pre> full_mod_set <- full_mod_set[, -21]</pre> ## creating test and training sets for stepwise model selection full mod set$id <- 1:nrow(full mod set)</pre> step_train <- full_mod_set %>% dplyr::sample_frac(.75) step_test <- dplyr::anti_join(full_mod_set, train, by = "id")</pre> step_train <- step_train[, -22]</pre> step_test <- step_test[, -22]</pre>
designating full model with all vars full_mod <- glm(over_avg_rx_rate ~ ., data = step_train, family = "binomial") ## prediction accuracy of full mod glm_probs <- data.frame(probs = predict(full_mod, newdata = step_test, type = "response"))</pre>
glm_pred <- glm_probs %>%
 mutate(pred = ifelse(probs > 0.5, 1, 0)) glm_pred <- cbind(step_test, glm_pred)</pre>
glm_pred %>%
  count(pred, over avg rx rate) %>%
  spread(over_avg_rx_rate, n, fill = 0) glm pred %>%
  summarise(
    score = mean(pred == over_avg_rx_rate), recip = mean(pred != over avg rx rate)
calculating stepwise model, forward selection, from full mod step_model <- full_mod %>% stepAIC(trace = FALSE, direction = "forward") coef(step_model)
summary(step_model)
comparing stepwise and full model for coefficient values (they are the same) cbind(coef(step_model), coef(full_mod)) ## checking prediction accuracy for forward stepwise model selection glm_step_probs <- data.frame(probs = predict(step_model,</pre>
                                              newdata = step_test,
                                              type = "response"))
glm_step_pred <- glm_step_probs %>% mutate(pred = ifelse(probs > 0.5, 1, 0))
```

```
glm_step_pred <- cbind(step_test, glm_step_pred)</pre> glm_step_pred %>%
  count(pred, over_avg_rx_rate) %>%
  spread(over_avg_rx_rate, n, fill = 0) glm_step_pred %>%
  summarise(
    score = mean(pred == over_avg_rx_rate), recip = mean(pred != over avg rx rate)
  )
Log regression with only sig vars from stepwise
can put change inrate back in this model...
I was just testing to see what it would do to remove it.
sig step mod <- glm(over avg rx rate ~ unemployment rate +
                      hs_graduation_rate +
                       average_age +
                      no_hispanic_proportion +
                      state_legislature +
                      poverty_rate,
                     data = step_test, family = "binomial") summary(sig_step_mod)
checking prediction accuracy for model with significant vars from stepwise model
new probs <- data.frame(probs = predict(sig step mod,</pre>
                                         newdata = step_test,
                                          type = "response"))
new_pred <- new_probs %>%
  mutate(pred = ifelse(probs > 0.5, 1, 0)) new_pred <- cbind(step_test, new_pred)</pre>
new pred %>%
  count(pred, over_avg_rx_rate) %>%
  spread(over_avg_rx_rate, n, fill = 0)
new_pred %>%
  summarise(
    score = mean(pred == over_avg_rx_rate), recip = mean(pred != over_avg_rx_rate)
  )
ROC curve for full model
prob <- predict(full_mod, newdata = step_test, type = "response")</pre> pred <- prediction(prob, step_test$over_avg_rx_rate)</pre> perf <- performance(pred, measure = "tpr", x.measure = "fpr")</pre> plot(perf)
ROC curve for step model
step_prob <- predict(step_model, newdata = step_test, type = "response")</pre> step pred <- prediction(step prob, step test$over avg rx rate) step_perf <- performance(step_pred, measure = "tpr", x.measure = "fpr")</pre> plot(step_perf, colorize = TRUE) plot(step_perf, add = TRUE)
area under ROC curve for full model
```

```
auc <- performance(pred, measure = "auc")</pre> auc <- auc@y.values[[1]]</pre> auc
area under ROC curve for forward stepwise model
step_auc <- performance(step_pred, measure = "auc")</pre> step_auc <- step_auc@y.values[[1]]</pre> step_auc
relative variable importance for forward stepwise model
varImp(step_model)
pseudo-r-squared
pR2(step_model)
creating training and test sets for lasso (splitting up x and y)
x <- model.matrix(over_avg_rx_rate ~., full_mod_set)[, -22]</pre> y <- full_mod_set %>% dplyr::select(over_avg_rx_rate) %>% unlist() %>%
  as.numeric()
lasso_train <- full_mod_set %>% sample_frac(0.75)
lasso_test <- full_mod_set %>% setdiff(lasso_train)
removing id variable lasso_train_x <- model.matrix(over_avg_rx_rate~., lasso_train)[, -22]</pre> lasso_test_x <- model.matrix(over_avg_rx_rate~., lasso_test)[, -22]</pre> lasso_train_y <- lasso_train %>%
  dplyr::select(over_avg_rx_rate) %>%
  unlist() %>%
  as.numeric()
lasso_test_y <- lasso_test %>%
  dplyr::select(over_avg_rx_rate) %>%
  unlist() %>%
  as.numeric()
grid <- 10 ^{\circ} seq(10, -2, length = 100)
producing initial lasso mod lasso_mod <- glmnet(lasso_train_x, lasso_train_y, alpha = 1, lambda = grid)</pre> ## using cross val to select optimal lambda cv_lasso <- cv.glmnet(lasso_train_x, lasso_train_y, alpha = 1, family = "binomial")</pre> plot(cv_lasso)
bestlam <- cv_lasso$lambda.min
lasso model with optimal lambda value lasso_pred <- predict(lasso_mod, s = bestlam, newx = lasso_test_x)</pre>
```

```
lasso test MSE
mean((lasso_pred - lasso_test_y) ^ 2)
```